Profile

I am a Web Developer with strong hands-on experience in modern frameworks including React, Next.js, and Laravel. I have contributed to real-world projects including a Utility Management System, a Project Management System, and several portfolio websites.

Currently, I am strengthening my technical foundation while pursuing a bachelor's degree in computer science in Thailand. Beyond my core stack, I have explored additional technologies such as Python/Django for backend development and React Native and Flutter for cross-platform mobile development.

Motivated, adaptable, and passionate about building practical solutions, I aim to apply my full-stack experience and strong learning mindset to contribute effectively in a professional development environment.
